

Berwickshire MARINE RESERVE

Scotland's first voluntary marine reserve

WHO ARE WE?

The Berwickshire Coast
a truly special location

The mixing of warm water currents from the Gulf Stream, with cold water currents from the Arctic create a unique ecosystem which supports a rich biodiversity of species not usually found in UK waters.

A world renowned diving site, attracting thousands of visitors each year, the Berwickshire Marine Reserve (BMR) is a hotspot for recreational users.

The BMR was set up in 1984 to help manage and conserve this unique marine environment.

WHAT WE DO!

Conservation through Citizen Science

We run a number of citizen science projects to help us monitor and record the species found here so we can better understand and protect this precious environment

Learning through Training & Events

Every year we run a full programme of training and events.

Please see our website and social media pages for full details.

Community Voice for the BMR

Set up by the Community, the BMR works to resolve any issues that may occur and share updates on the wonderful world we work to protect - say 'Hi' to our Rangers this summer!

Volunteer with Us

We need volunteers to help with events and marine monitoring.
Full training provided.

CODES OF CONDUCT

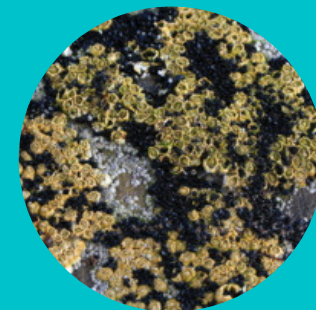

To conserve the Berwickshire Marine Reserve, we need to respect other users and protect the environment and biodiversity of the organisms that live within it:

- 🐟 Stay safe - always check your local conditions and inform someone of your location
- 🐟 Respect wildlife - leave animals and plants where you find them, taking care not to damage them
- 🐟 Use marine friendly equipment and products to avoid pollution and entrapment
- 🐟 Give nesting seabirds the space they need to breed successfully (March - September)
- 🐟 Do not tamper with lobster pots - its illegal and dangerous
- 🐟 Do not approach wildlife - especially seals hauled out on the beach or rocks. If concerned call British Divers Marine Life Rescue: 01825765546
